BURQUITLAM PARK

Burquitlam Park, now home to the Coquitlam YMCA has been open to the public as of January 2023. The facility is welcoming tours of the new 55,000 sf state-of-the-art facilities, featuring an indoor pool, gym, fitness studio, multi-purpose space, child care and more. The southern sections of the redesigned Burquitlam Park will be opening for the public in mid-2023, and will include the community policing station, underground parkade Park-and-Ride, transportation improvements, and residential rental Towers.

COTTONWOOD PARK (PICTURED ABOVE)

Cottonwood Park is undergoing a major multi-year expansion that began in 2018. Phase 1B is currently underway and will expand the park from 1.1 hectares (2.6 acres) to 2.1 hectares (5.15 acres) and add a softball diamond, soccer field, multi-use sport court, parkour elements, gathering spaces and other amenities.

Cottonwood Park’s expansion began in 2018, when Phase 1A brought new play equipment, a water play area, a youth activity and social area, a washroom, a picnic shelter and a parking lot. Phase 1C, anticipated in the next few years, will include three lit racket sport courts and a permanent trail connection to Cottonwood Avenue. Ultimately, the park is intended to become a 4.65-hectare (11.5-acre) community-level park, almost double what the City had envisioned for the park in 2002.

The park expansion project grew out of an agreement-in-principle between the YMCA, Concert Properties and the City to deliver community recreation and park amenities to the Burquitlam neighbourhood. The overall park concept plan was developed in 2017 with community input.
